Government Cuts Expenses Two Billion Dollars

Expenses of 1924 Will be Less Than Those of 1921—Budget Director Explains Reason.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, July 21.—The United States Government's operating expenses in 1924 will be two billion dollars under those of 1921—a figure exceeding the dividends paid by the railroads in the country for the last five years.

This estimate of prodigious governmental cost cutting has been made public by General H. M. Lord, director of the budget, in connection with the announcement of probable expenditures in the new fiscal year. Exclusive of the amount applied to the reduction of the public debt, expenditures must be kept within three billion dollars, according to the edict issued by President Coolidge.

Must Cut Burden.
The heavy burden of the tax must be further lightened," Lord said. "Continued reduction in expenditure and continuing restriction of estimates alone cannot accomplish tax cutting."

The taxpayer, who has patriotically and uncomplainingly paid more than $20,000,000,000 of war taxes in the past few years, rightly feels that there should be relief from war taxation in larger measure than has been afforded."

Lord declared that the spending program will be very nearly carried out. "Despite legislation and untold developments that made the task more difficult than was anticipated," it was explained that the adjusted compensation has added $132,000,000 to the budget.

Continuing the accomplishments of the government since 1921, the last year free from budget control, Lord asserted that, aside from public debt expenses, the proportion of all government cost was but 28 per cent. While states, cities and towns drew 72 per cent from the taxpayers.

More This Year.
If the figures for 1924 were available, the difference would be most startling," Lord added. "In pointing to what the federal government has accomplished in the way of retrenchment we intend to reduce the states and cities of this country. We do, however, wish to show what untold effort is a common patriotic purpose to accomplish."

Lord said that the executive department of the government had made a spending program of $4,315,492 for 1924, adding that a program of economy, operating through the new budget bureau, cut the cost for 1922 $1,742,735,189 below the year before. The 1923 budget reduced expenditures $263,223,330 below those of 1922.

Huge Reduction.
The figures for this year, ending June 30, show a reduction of approximately $200,000,000 below those of last year," Lord continued. "We will spend this year $200,000,000 less than we took from the treasury in 1921. In three years we have cut the ordinary expenses of government in half."

Utilizing what the two billion dollar means, Lord explained: "Half of the gold coin and bullion in the United States. The entire savings of 12,500,000 dollars in the nation's savings banks for a period of 20 months. The value of all the motor vehicles produced in the United States in 1922."

"It exceeds the amount paid by the railroads in the United States for five years. It is more than twice the value of the cotton crop of 1922 and nearly one-half the value of the wheat crop of that year."

Permits Tax Cut.
In the three budget years the national printing plant had not lost $55,517,135 from annual estimates there would have been no tax reduction in 1924, according to Lord.

Southwest tax reduction and curtailment of revenue the public debt has been reduced from $26,123,354,276, the budget director said.

Again referring to state and city expenditures, Lord said that in 1921 federal expenditures were 59 per cent of the cost of government, while the lesser divisions were responsible for the remaining 41 per cent. Including public debt expenditures, the federal government in 1924 makes an assessment of 40 per cent on the public purse, while the state and city governments make 50 per cent. The mentioned reduction of the cost of ordinary government, according to the budget head.

Smaller Units.
He said that public expenditures, and indebtedness of the states, cities, counties and towns, has been increasing higher and higher in the past few years, and that it is dangerous to credit to congressional economy

CONTRACT SIGNED FOR OPERATING NEW HOTEL

The Governor Clinton, Kingston's New Hotel, to be Operated by The American Hotels Corporation, Which Operates Many Big Hotels Throughout The East and in Canada Successfully.

The Governor Clinton, Kingston's new hotel, will be operated by the American Hotels Corporation. This has been understood from the beginning, but no definite agreement was made until last week, when the board of directors of the hotel executed a formal contract with the American Hotels Corporation.

The American Hotels Corporation operates a chain of hotels in New York state, New Jersey, Canada and New England, in which is included the Ten Eyck at Albany, the Seneca and Rochester in Rochester, the Onondaga in Syracuse, the King Edward in Toronto, the Mt. Royal in Montreal, the Elgin Burritt in New Britain, the Stacy-Trent in Trenton, the Robert Treat in Newark and a number of others. These hotels advertise one another. Each recommends the others and the Governor Clinton will be an important link in the chain extending from Canada to New Jersey and New England.

The profits of the American Hotels Corporation come from dividends on the common stock, of which the corporation holds half, the remaining half being owned by local investors. Therefore, it cannot receive any profit without distributing an equal sum among the local stockholders.

Raid More Houses As Disorderly

District Attorney Traver and Sheriff Wells Continue Work of Cleaning Up Undesirable Places—State Troopers Lead Raid.

Sergeant James Cunningham, Deputy Sheriff Seth Jocelyn and Anderson V. Ellsworth, and a number of State Troopers on Saturday night raided two more disorderly houses in the town of Ulster, arresting two women as proprietresses and two other women as disorderly persons. This was the second movement in the determination of District Attorney Traver and Sheriff Wells to close every disorderly house in Ulster county after evidence has been obtained in advance to warrant a raid.

In the two places raided a quantity of alleged liquor in bottles and jugs was seized which will be turned over to the federal authorities so that steps can be taken to prosecute for violation of the Volstead law in selling and possessing intoxicating liquors.

The first place raided was a road house on the Kingston-Saugerties road a few miles from Kingston, near the West Shore Railroad crossing and took place about 11 o'clock. The property is said to be owned by Antonio Aida, also known as Coster, and there Anna Kemp, charged with being the proprietress, was arrested, and a young woman who gave her name of Hilda Ladrie was also taken into custody. A quantity of alleged liquor was seized.

The women were taken before Justice of the Peace Walter Webber at Flatbush and the Kemp woman waived examination to the charge of keeping a disorderly house and gave bail in $1,000 to await the action of the grand jury. The Ladrie girl pleaded guilty to the charge of being a disorderly person and was fined $10, which she paid. The Kemp woman said her attorney was Frank W. Brooks.

The officers then went to East Kingston where, at 12 o'clock, they visited the place run by Edna Woodrow, who was arrested as the proprietress, and also Betty Thomas as a disorderly person. A slot machine and several bottles of alleged whiskey, gin and Scotch were seized.

The girl was fine $10 by Justice of the Peace Webber, which she paid, and on Sunday the Woodrow woman was released on giving bond in $1,000 to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of conducting a disorderly house.

Besides Sergeant Cunningham and the deputy sheriffs, others in the raiding party were Sergeant Hopkins and State Troopers Metzger, Vandecarr, Koon, Freer and Alsdorf.

was given by Lord. He said, in estimates for 1922, executive agencies asked for $1,312,925,813 more than Congress gave. Estimates for 1923, the first budget year, were $162,523,008 more than the resultant appropriations, while for 1924 estimates exceeded appropriations by $10,038,595.

"In a budget totaling $3,643,125,959 this result is extraordinary," Lord commented.

Circus Coming Here Tomorrow

Line of March Covers Both Ends of City—Huge Aggregation of Talent Form Sells-Floto Circus.

The Sells-Floto circus, with 248 horses, fifteen tigers, fifteen lions, and nineteen elephants, besides all the clowns and actors that go to make up a real circus, will arrive in Kingston early Tuesday morning from Albany where they have been playing to capacity audiences today.

The cars will be unloaded in the yards and the cages, wagons and equipment will be immediately hauled to the circus lot at the Kingston Fair Grounds.

Line of March for Parade.
The Sells-Floto street parade, the largest in the world this year, as its only rival does not afford the public this traditional treat, will get under way Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock from the Fair Grounds. The line of march for the parade will be as follows: From the circus lot to North Front street, to Wall street, to Main street, to Clinton avenue, to Albany avenue, to Broadway as far as Delaware avenue where the parade will divide, then down Broadway to East Street, to Hasbrouck avenue, to Mill street, to Broadway, to Abel street, to Wurts street, to McEntee street, to Broadway, to Albany avenue, to Clinton avenue, to North Front street, to the circus lot.

There will be nineteen elephants trailing just ahead of the second steam calliope in the Sells-Floto procession Tuesday, and there will be more open cages and dens of wild animal actors than ever before seen with the big show. "Percy," the African ape, who rides the hippopotamus, will also be on hand.

The Shows.
The big performance, starting at 2 and 8 p. m., with "The Bride and the Beasts," barbaric, lyrical spectacle, are built on a still more extensive scale than those of last year. The spectacle, in which 1,900 people and animals take part, climaxes with a raid of man killers.

Eleven Sheridan users which have performed all over the world also are in the show. The tigers will build pyramids, jump through loops and waste battle with the trainer, Christianson, said to be the world's most famous animal trainer.

In the side show will be Scotch bag-pipers, a ventriloquist, mind readers, sword swallowers and "Little Frances O'Connor," an armless girl of ten who does all sorts of things with her feet.

Have Met With Success.
Officials of the circus say business in New England, where the show has been seven weeks, has been phenomenal, and that capacity crowds have attended all the performances.

The doors will be opened for the main performances at 1 and 7 p. m. Tickets for the circus may be obtained at Eltinge's Drug Store.

MALE FOX ADDED TO FORSYTH PARK ZOO

There has been another addition to the Forsyth Park zoo. Charles Schoenthaler of 245 Broadway on July 5 presented the city with a young male fox which was added to the collection of wild animals at the park. The fox, a pretty little thing, is a bit timid as yet, but seems to get along well with his mate and is a source of great fun to the children who visit the park.

Police Watched Mob Kill Consul

American Vice-Consul's Fatal Injuries Were Inflicted After He Was Helpless in Hospital—Religious Fanatics Thought He Poisoned Sacred Well.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, July 21.—Major Robert Imbrie, American vice-consul at Teheran who was murdered on Friday, was beaten to death by mobs while Persian police and soldiers looked on, according to dispatches today from Teheran.

An autopsy showed a sabre cut on the scalp, the dispatches said, adding that only the Persian military police carried sabres.

After Imbrie and his companion, Seymour, another American, had been taken to the hospital, the mob followed, broke down the doors of the hospital and swarmed into it and again attacked the Americans, according to today's dispatches from Teheran.

No Interference by Police.
"It appears that many soldiers and police were present when Imbrie was attacked and that they did not intervene," the reports from Teheran stated.

"It is also alleged the soldiers and police participated in the attack."

The injuries actually responsible for Imbrie's death, according to Teheran reports, were those inflicted while he was helpless in the hospital. Imbrie and Seymour were driving in a carriage near the Cossack barracks when they were first attacked, but beat off their assailants with sticks and fled in the carriage.

A motorcyclist stopped the carriage (the dispatches do not state whether it was a military policeman or a civilian) and then a number of soldiers caught up with the carriage.

Imbrie was struck down with a military sword and when he attempted to arise a huge rock struck him and felled him, breaking his jaw. Then the mob fell upon him and beat him.

Meantime, a number of the mob seized Seymour and dragged him to the parade grounds of the barracks, where he was clubbed and beaten.

Mob Stormed Hospital.
Police finally scattered the mob and got the injured men into an automobile and took them to the hospital. The mob reformed and followed. They smashed doors and windows and overran the hospital in a search for Imbrie and Seymour whom they found and again attacked.

In view of these latest revelations, the Teheran dispatches said, the diplomatic corps has sent a stiff note to the government. The government has publicly expressed sorrow over the attack and murder and promised unremitting efforts to arrest and punish the guilty.

Thought Consul Poisoned Fountain.
Teheran, Persia, July 21.—A vigorous investigation of the murder of the American Vice-Consul Imbrie was under way today by the Persian government, following the protests of the American government.

Martial law has been declared and several men, suspected of being members of the mob of religious fanatics that beat Major Imbrie to death, are under arrest.

From some of these suspects it was learned that Major Imbrie was suspected of being a member of the Bahai sect, a religious group opposed to the Mohammedans. The attack was preplanned, government officials said, by a report spread among the mob that Major Imbrie had poisoned the sacred fountain in the public square where he had driven in his carriage to take photographs.

Police Court Traffic Cases

Stanley Snow of East Kingston was arrested Saturday evening by Officer Burger for driving an auto to the left of a traffic standard. This morning Snow was fined $5 in police court by Judge Harry E. Schrick.

Frank S. Hyatt of 35 Janet street was arrested Saturday afternoon by Officer Simpson for parking his car in front of the Kingston Opera House. He explained to the court how it happened, and as it was the first time he had ever been arrested, he was discharged.

The hearing in the case of John McElroy of New York city, arrested Sunday by Officer Kuehn on a charge of reckless driving in speeding 34 miles an hour down Broadway without signaling at intersecting streets, was adjourned at McElroy's request. He furnished cash bail for his appearance at the adjourned date.

Chicago Slayers Plead Guilty

Millionaires' Sons Who Killed Franks Boy Unexpectedly Plead Guilty to Kidnapping for Ransom and Murder But Ask Hearing to Determine Their Sanity.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Criminal Court Building, Chicago, July 21.—In one of the most dramatic court scenes ever enacted, Attorney Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense in the trial of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, today withdrew pleas of not guilty to charges of kidnapping and slaying Robert Franks, 13 year old school boy, and entered pleas of guilty for them. He asked that their mentality be inquired into by the court and Chief Justice Caverly of the Criminal court set Wednesday as the date on which he would announce his ruling.

A surprise had been expected but the one which the canny old veteran of a hundred bitterly fought court battles delivered was the last which everyone in the crowded old court room thought would come.

Crimes Punishable by Death.
Both crimes are punishable by death. If a sanity commission is not granted on Wednesday Judge Caverly can immediately impose sentence, or he can order a jury impaneled to hear the prosecution's evidence and then recommend what punishment should be meted out. The latter procedure has been widely published as in the present instance.

Curious Mob Denied Admittance.
One hundred persons who long before the 10 o'clock hour of convening had fought their way into the court room, heard the case. A hundred guards and bailiffs had been on duty since daylight to keep in order the great mobs that swirled about the building clamoring for entrance. Attorneys, newspapermen and close personal friends of the defendants were first accommodated and then the scant hundred of the public who were able to find seats were allowed to enter. After that no one was permitted on the same floor of the building.

High Tension in Court Room.
At 10 o'clock exactly, Judge Caverly entered the court room. His first word was a statement to the press, informing them no flash light pictures were to be taken, and giving further instructions as to how they should handle the news of Chicago's most widely advertised murder trial.

There was a brief pause. All knew what was coming. The air was electric with tension.

"Call the prisoners, Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb," solemnly announced Judge Caverly in low, even tones.

It was a signal for craning of necks and twisting in chairs. Bailiffs rapped for order and said repetition of even such slight irregularity would result in ejection from the room.

Slayers Perfectly Poised.
From the great walnut door at the right of the room opposite the judge, the two boys came. Both were clean shaven and nattily dressed.

Both appeared perfectly poised. They looked neither to right or left as they entered, walked the short distance to two chairs immediately in front of the bar and sat down.

Behind them walked two burly deputy sheriffs who took seats directly behind the defendants.

There was utter silence for perhaps three seconds. Then a sharp rap by a bailiff brought everyone to tense and straining to catch every detail. The customary formality of convening the session was not given in the usual unintelligible drone of

Calls Europe Vast Arsenal; Warns of War

Socialist Member of English Parliament Says Nations Should Demand Truth of Menacing Situation.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, July 21.—"Europe at the present moment is a vast arsenal. At any moment some section of the community might apply the match that would plunge it into all the horrors of another great war."

Edmund D. Morel, Socialist member of Parliament for Dundee, and well known authority on foreign affairs, utters the above warning in an amazingly outspoken interview published here, in which he shows that nearly every European country is making wholesale preparations for war.

Morel is widely known for his activity in connection with misused races. He visited the United States in 1904 and inaugurated a movement against misrule in the Congo, and has published many books on the World War and its relation to foreign policies.

His charges that the real danger point is to be found in powerful industrial and financial interests in France, and calls for the convocation of an international conference on the armaments problem and the political and economic issues which have created it.

"Extensive Output."

"There is going on at the present moment," Morel declares, "a more extensive output of war material than at any time since the peace. The chief centers of production are two—the Skoda works in Czechoslovakia and the Austrian State factories. French influence and French money are directing both. In the spring of this year the French owned shares in the Skoda Company worth $10,000,000; the managing director and the chief technical experts are Frenchmen. I go so far as to say that France now controls practically the whole war mechanism of Czechoslovakia."

"War material is being produced in enormous quantities at the Austrian State factories. During the past fifteen months Yugoslavia has been supplied by the Austrian factories with 1,000,000 Mauser rifles, 1,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 133 wagonloads of infantry ammunition, two wagonloads of machine guns, large quantities of field guns, and an immense amount of smaller material."

Small Nations, Too.

"Rumania has placed large orders for shells, guns and ammunition which are now in process of execution. Poland is also a large purchaser, among the items already delivered to her being 35,000,000 pieces of 7.9 millimetre ammunition and 34 wagonloads of smaller ammunition."

Questioned as to how Austria manages to manufacture such an enormous amount of material in her present supposed poverty-stricken state, Morel declared: "She is being enabled to do it with the aid of the French taxpayers' money, by which I mean loans, that those smaller countries are able to purchase the material."

Members of the Little Entente are also placing orders in Britain for war materials," Morel added.

Charges "Conniving."

"Under the treaty Austria is not a free agent and is not allowed to manufacture war materials. The orders to the Austrian State factories could not even have been placed, let alone executed, without the direct knowledge of the conference of ambassadors. The only conclusion is that some of the Allied powers are deliberately conniving at it. Under our very noses French finance is making Europe into a powder magazine."

"If the continent of Europe is to be saved from another war," Morel concludes, "the people of Britain and other countries must cease to live in a world of illusions. They must demand the whole truth, and the convocation, before it is too late, of an international conference on this problem."

NEGRESS AND NEGRO IN STABBING AFFRAY

About 2:20 o'clock Sunday morning Susie Wayne, a negress of 70 Murray street, called at police headquarters and claimed she had been cut in the hand by Joe Coemer, a negro, at Shultz's brickyard. Later Joe was taken to the Kingston City Hospital with a badly cut arm which he said had been inflicted by Susie. Sergeant Hanley decided to arrest both and turned them over to the sheriff's office.

When I say the good Maxwell is the best four-cylinder car at anything like its price in America today, I am thinking of specific accomplishments of the last year.

For instance, vibration subdued to the vanishing point; revolutionary riding and driving results; main bearings rarely if ever replaced; 18,000 miles from a set of tires, and so on.

Maxwell of today is more than the good Maxwell—it has been developed to a plane of superiority far above and beyond the dead level of previous four-cylinder possibilities.

Govern by Law, Not Officials

Esteem Officials Only as They Seep Within the Law, Says Secretary Hughes in London Address.

London, July 21.—Charles Evans Hughes, United States secretary of state and president of the American Bar Association, made a plea for government by law—not by officials—in responding to an address at the opening meeting of American lawyers today in Westminster hall.

"We are meeting in the shrine of common law," he said. "Despite the multiplicity and diversity of our laws, we in the United States are working out a legal unity which has its roots in the common conception of the fundamental principles of law and liberty."

The spirit of the common law is opposed to those insidious encroachments upon liberty which take the form of uncontrolled administrative authority. There is still need for recognition of the ancient right of people to be governed by laws and not by officials.

Under the common law we respect authority but it is the authority of the law, and we esteem officials only insofar as they keep within the law.

Secretary Hughes made no statement concerning the Allied conference on the Dawes plan, or other international political problems. He appeared in the role of president of the American Bar Association, not as American secretary of state.

British Praises Declaration.
Lord Chancellor Viscount Haldane welcomed the lawyers from America and Canada in an address in which he thanked Providence for the Declaration of Independence.

"I have always thought that great credit of 1776 most fortunate," he said. "It has done more to strengthen the ties between the people of the United States, Canada and Britain than anything else in their history."

Justice Sutherland, carrying out the theme of Anglo-American amity, said the friendship and cooperation of England and the United States had had a great influence upon the world and that their continuance was essential to the good of civilization.

Three Injured at Stony Hollow

Three people were injured late Saturday afternoon when a Buick touring and a Kissel touring car came together at Stony Hollow, at the turn into the Boulevard road.

The injured were S. M. Cohen of Glenford, one of the occupants of the Buick, and a Mrs. Lipman and her daughter of New York city, two of the occupants of the Kissel.

At the time of the accident the Kissel was proceeding on the right side of the road, going towards the Kissel, while the Buick was coming in the opposite direction.

A third car shoved the Buick towards the right side of the road which in turn smashed into the Kissel, sending it into the ditch on the side of the road. The Kissel was badly damaged and the wrecker from Doc Smith's garage was called, and the car towed to his garage in this city.

All of the injured parties were taken to the Benedictine Sanitarium where it was found that Cohen was suffering from severe lacerations about the body. Mrs. Lipman had four broken ribs and a broken wrist while her daughter sustained severe cuts about the head. Mrs. Lipman and her daughter had their wounds dressed, after which they were taken to Fleischmann's by Edward Meier of this city. Cohen was discharged from the sanitarium this morning.

Mr. Fain was very appreciative over recovering his pin and writes that he intends to pay a reward of $25 to the finder.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 21, 1934.

Prof. Todd of Amherst College is quoted as saying that New York's heavy skyscrapers are likely to cause a break in the ledge under Manhattan Island. It seems that the ledge is the weaker and the more likely to give way because there is a "joint" under a city which is already known to support so large a variety of "joints" above ground. How Prof. Todd located the subterranean one is not stated. But his announcement need not cause summering New Yorkers to rush home to eat away their valuables before the metropolis sinks into an abyss. This calamity, like others predicted, such as the world's destruction by a comet's fiery tail, another ice age, drifting into the mighty ocean of fire called Strus, etc., is not scheduled to take place very soon, so for at least some few hundred generations New Yorkers can go about their business and pleasures in a tolerably serene frame of mind. Through startling, scientificists as a rule are merciful.

PUGILISM IN OPERA.

It is rather startling to hear of a coming public performance in London of a grand opera featuring a modern prize fighter as the hero, and with the great Russian singer, Chaliapin, glorifying with all his beautiful tone power the ring exploits of a big-fisted pugilist. It is even more unexpected to learn that conservative Queen Mary has praised a private performance of this opera and that musical critics are enthusiastic over the composer's method of achieving triumph at difficult moments, as when the cry of "foul" rings out and is greeted with rivaling hoots and yells. Possibly novelty is the chief attraction. In any case, however surprising, it seems to "go."

If grand opera can deal successfully with bull-fighting, why not with prize-fighting? Well, for one thing, romance is associated with the one but not with the other, notwithstanding the fact that bull-fighting is by far the more cruel and brutal. The mauler in his picturesque garb may be highly pleasing, he may be as poor and worthy as he is handsome, and he may be eager for the love of a lady of high degree, which his prowess and good looks finally succeed in capturing. But how is it possible to bring such elements of romance into a prize fighter's fist struggle for big stakes. The prize fighter may be worthy, but he is never poor, and, with the exception of Carpenter and Young Stribling, who ever heard of one possessed of sufficient pulchritude to charm the feminine eye? The very calling demands stocky bodies, bull necks, and facial contours rugged enough to survive the severest punchings.

FALLIBLE SCIENCE.

To President Coolidge, in connection with his recent bereavement, is attributed the idea that the future life is not a mere "mystic haven of rest for those whose earthly missions are done," but a realm full of the vital and vigorous, a place for the young as well as the old. The reasonableness of this view calls to mind some recent remarks of Bernard Shaw, the seeming intent of which is to suggest that the pretensions of science to exact knowledge strain credulity more than the claims of Biblical infallibility. In his preface to "Saint Joan" Mr. Shaw says:

The medieval doctors of divinity, who did not pretend to settle how many angels could dance on the point of a needle, cut a very poor figure as far as romantic credulity is concerned beside the modern physicists who have settled to the bilth of a million-metre every movement and position in the dance of the electrons. Not for worlds would I question the precise accuracy of these calculations or the existence of electrons (whatever they may be). The fate of Joan is a warning to me against such heresy. But why men who believe in electrons should regard themselves as less credulous than the men who believe in angels is not apparent to me.

This interesting statement calls for criticism only in one minor particular. The medieval Schoolmen, more reverent than Mr. Shaw, did not debate how many angels could "dance," but how many could "stand," on the point of a needle. As for the main point, what, indeed, is more fallible than a science whose new discoveries so frequently upset its previous conclusions, although the credulous had been bidden to accept the latter as a sort of secular gospel beyond dispute?

In the comment on Bernard Shaw's utterance it has been said with much point: "To the man who stops to think nothing is more fallible than science. Not so long ago the chemists were teaching in the universities that there was a definite number of elements, and that these elements were fixed in number and unchangeable. Then chemists themselves discovered that atoms could be broken down and that substances could be, under certain conditions, transmuted. They discovered that the essence of all elements was the same substance. They find themselves at present pretty well in agreement with the ancient Pythagorean doctrine of numerical bases for distinctions in matter. Science, as mechanical discovery, is not open to attack. It lies at the root of all invention. But as theory, as an inquiry into first causes, it has got little further than the Greeks. It has merely given us new names for inexplicable phenomena."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

SLEEP CENTRES.

In liking that body of yours to a motor car, your brain and the nerves leading from it were likened to the battery and wires.

The battery is in a case, and the wires are all insulated.

However, your nervous system seems to have a number of auxiliary stations which control various functions, and the brain proper doesn't have to bother much about them.

Some of these centres are your sleep centres and are therefore very important.

When you are asleep, they seem to be recharging themselves, just as the storage battery does when you are not using it up for starting and lighting.

When you are awake and your brain active, you use up this stored energy. If you get sufficient rest after this mental work, which might include physical work also, as this often entails the use of the brain, then the centre, this storage centre gets a chance to store up energy again. If you don't get sufficient rest then the recharging is interfered with and your nervous system suffers.

Some physiologists has estimated that if you lose one complete night's rest, that it takes seventeen days to restore the body to its normal condition of nervous health.

The loss of an hour's sleep may mean very little, or the loss of half the night's sleep is soon rectified, but one complete night, with not even five minutes sleep is of serious import.

And this is the reason that sleep is so important, because real sleep, unconsciousness on your part, actually turns off the power or juice, your centre does not have to supply any, and actually gets a chance to recharge or restore itself during that time.

If you sleep poorly, are troubled with dreams, you can easily see that there is really not a good chance for your little storage battery to recharge itself, because you do not turn off your mental activities completely.

And just another important point. You have often been under strong emotional excitement, worry, anxiety or the exhilaration of a football game or boxing contest and wonder why you can't sleep.

Your battery runs down, doesn't it?

Similarly then under strong excitement or emotion you are using a tremendous amount of nervous energy taking all that your little nerve centre can supply.

Now if in addition to this, you can't get your sleep you can see what your nervous system is up against.

Just when you need complete recharging of the centre, you keep awake, thus using energy, and it charges up poorly instead of completely.

Benefits of Boy Scouts' Camp

President Schwarzwald of Ulster County Council Calls Attention of Parents to Some Features of Camp Life.

July 21, 1934.

To the Parents of Boy Scouts:

No doubt by this time your boy has discussed with you the matter of going to camp. There are a good many reasons why you should encourage and help him to go.

In the first place, he will have a rattling good time. Every parent wants his son's boyhood days to be happy ones. Recollections of the days spent in camp and on the hike, evenings spent around the campfire, and the wonderful fellowship of it all will be among the boy's most treasured memories when he grows to manhood.

Then he will benefit physically from the days spent in the open, under happy healthful conditions, with plenty of good exercise, good wholesome food. He will come home, brown as an Indian, in splendid shape to take up his studies in the fall.

He will benefit mentally. He will receive training in Scoutcraft and woodcraft under adult leaders of a high type. He will develop self-reliance and resourcefulness. He will learn to respect the rights of others. Camping under proper conditions is an all-round character-building experience. He will benefit spiritually.

"A Scout is Reverent." Arrangements are being made for scouts to attend a Sunday service of his own faith.

No effort has been spared to safeguard every feature of camp life as this summer's camp has been most carefully and thoroughly planned. All equipment used this year is brand new, the tents are all 9x12 feet in size and made up of good heavy 12 ounce khaki material, the cots are the standard canvas folding type.

The object of the Scout program is to build character and train boys for citizenship. Summer camp is one of the most important means to this end. It is not run for profit, in fact, it is almost invariably operated at a loss. The fee of six (6) dollars per week charged the boy pays only for his food. All other overhead charges such as salaries, cost of equipment, etc., is taken care of through other sources.

May I ask that you give this matter of sending your boy to camp very serious consideration and come to a decision at an early date. Your son has no doubt received a camp application blank by this time and by filling this in now and sending it to scout headquarters, 442 Broadway, Kingston, N. Y., you will not be disappointed by finding the week you have selected is full.

Further information may be had by calling Kingston 591 and asking questions.

I trust your decision will be a favorable one.

S. BURRELL SCHWARZWALDER, President.

TORPEDOES.

The first torpedo was the invention of an American, David Bushnell, and was given its first test 147 years ago today. Bushnell, a native of Saybrook, Conn., was inspired by the revolution to attempt to invent a machine for submerging navigation by which a magazine was to be carried to the bottom of ships for blowing them up, when the conductor was at a safe distance. He attempted to put this invention to practical use in the harbor of New York, and succeeded in blowing up a small British schooner, but failed in more ambitious projects. The success of the experiment excited great alarm among the British, but Bushnell's crude torpedo proved to be of little value, although it inspired Francis Hopkinson to write his humorous poem "The Battle of the Kegs." Fulton and others continued to experiment with torpedoes, and they began to reach a stage of deadly effectiveness with the use of the Whitehead torpedo, which first came into use in 1877 and was later adopted by most of the leading governments. In the Russo-German war torpedoes were employed by both sides, causing great destruction.

BETSY ROSS.

A humble, hard-working woman, who never did anything remarkable in the eighty-four years of her life (except to make a flag) and yet whose name will be remembered as long as the United States endures—such was Betsy Ross. Born in Philadelphia on New Year's day in 1752, her maiden name was Griscom. As a girl she was very fond of needlework and embroidery. At the age of twenty-one she became the bride of John Ross, a young upholsterer of Philadelphia, and assisted him in his little shop at 239 Arch street. She had been a wife less than three years when her husband was killed, early in 1776, while guarding some military stores. Herself efficient in the upholstery craft she continued the business. Not many months later she received a distinguished visitor at her little shop in the person of George Washington, who engaged her to make a flag. He gave Mistress Betsy a pencil drawing made by himself, outlining a banner of thirteen stripes, with a field dotted with thirteen stars. The sample flag, made by Mrs. Ross, was accepted by congress and later she received a contract to make all the flags for the government. Afterwards she became the wife of Captain Ashburn, and following his death, took a third husband, John Clapole. She died in Philadelphia in 1836.

The business she founded was continued by her daughter, Mrs. Clarissa Wilson, until 1857.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS.

It was just eighty-eight years ago today that the first railway line in Canada was opened. This small beginning of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the world's greatest railroad system, was only a few miles in length, and ran between St. John's and Laprarie, Quebec.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

KINKAJOU'S PUNISHMENT

Kinkajou is popular. Not only is the zoo where he lives, but he has many friends among girls and boys who want to hear about him.

"Tell us more about little Kinkajou, that cunning little animal with the long tail and the dear little face who looks something like a monkey, but who isn't one at all," they ask.

And so this is to be about Kinkajou and it is a true story just as Kinkajou is a real little animal, a dear, friendly, affectionate little animal.

Kinkajou loves bananas. He loves ice cream. He is fond of good things to eat.

He eats daintily and prettily and his cunning little face and his bright little eyes show his great enjoyment over his food.

He looks very appealing when he asks for more.

This is to be the story of Kinkajou's prank and Kinkajou's punishment.

We will call him Kink for short.

Kink was such a pet and was so tame that he had been allowed for many months to wander around the zoo house where lived the small animals.

Sometimes he would wander just outside the door and sit in the sunshine.

Often many of his friends would come to see him and, carrying him in their arms, they would take him for walks under the beautiful trees in the park, where the air was so pleasant and cool.

They would "treat" him, too. Yes, they would buy him ice cream cones which were on sale in the park.

Kinkajou didn't know anything about "buying." He simply knew that they would give him delicious treats such as this. He didn't have any money in his pockets, because he hadn't any pockets.

Also, because he was fed and housed and given plenty of play and amusement and fun, he never had to spend any money for anything.

One day it was very hot. Kink wandered about the animal house.

Then he decided he would sit on the step just outside.

He had his dinner and he had had a little sleep.

Somehow or other there was something, he wanted. Was he hungry? Was it food that he wanted? He didn't quite know what he wanted.

He visited some one would come and call on him. No visitors had come near him and the keeper was busy this afternoon. He was really quite a lonely little Kinkajou.

And he had been used to so much petting. Here he wanted some petting and no one was near to pet him.

If only some one would come and take him for an airing and hold him close and stroke him and then give him a nice cool ice cream cone.

Oh, that was what he was so hungry for! Now he knew. An ice cream cone.

Then he saw that nearby, the place where there was always ice cream was empty. No one was near. The man who handed out the ice cream cones was away, it seemed.

Although Kink had never had to pay for his ice cream he knew that he mustn't go and help himself. That he had always known was wrong to do. He knew he mustn't take his dinner off the wagon filled with food for the small animals, even though some would be for him.

He knew he must wait until the keeper gave it to him.

But the day was so hot and he was so lonely and there was ice cream so near.

Over to the ice cream went Kink. There was a great big fall filled with ice cream. Kink got the cover off. Then he had a feast.

Oh, such a feast he had!

But the man came back to his ice cream stand and found Kink there.

Naughty Kink! So Kink was kept in his cage in the zoo for three whole days and was just like any of the other animals. Oh, it was a very hard punishment!

And when they let Kink out again he told his keeper, with his expressive little eyes, that never again would he steal ice cream!

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

Now that the luscious pineapple is so plentiful let us use it often in various dishes as well as "putting it up" for winter use.

Pineapple Fluff.—Take one pint of preserved pineapple; soak overnight with a pound of marshmallows, quartered. Whip one pint of double cream very stiff and add the other two ingredients; beat well to mix, and chill before serving.

Pineapple Strawberry Cocktail.—Cut large berries in halves, put a few into cocktail glasses; sprinkle with powdered sugar and add crushed or grated pineapple to fill the glasses. On top place a whole, perfect berry. Chill thoroughly before serving.

Stuffed Tomatoes.—Select small sized tomatoes, cut a slice from the top and remove the centers. Fill with chopped cucumber seasoned with onion and a bit of green pepper, if liked, and add salad dressing to taste. Fill the tomatoes and chill before serving.

Cheese and Pineapple Sandwiches.—Mash one large cream cheese, add one-quarter of a cupful of heavy cream, whipped. Add an equal measure of finely-chopped pineapple and, when well-mixed, spread on thin slices of bread which have been covered with mayonnaise dressing. Put together with a lettuce leaf dipped in mayonnaise.

Strawberry and Pineapple Jelly.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin in one-quarter of a cupful of cold water for five minutes. Place in a saucepan over the fire one cupful each of strawberry and pineapple juice. When the mixture boils, stir in the gelatin and one-quarter cupful of sugar. Tinge with a bit of green coloring. Fill individual molds two-thirds full. When firm, drop in large strawberries dipped in sugar. Serve, when molded, with whipped cream.

Elephant Fierce Fighter

The list of hunters who have conquered lions at desperately close quarters, who have been actually mauled by them and have yet survived, is long. Far fewer in the annals of African exploration and hunting are those who have come into direct personal contact with an angry elephant in his native wilds and have lived to tell the tale.

Cloth From Dog's Hair

The beautiful white hair of the Samoyed dog has been woven into cloth and the commercial possibilities of the finished product have been successfully demonstrated by the Royal Society of Arts in London. The hair used was from the combings, the undercoat that falls naturally twice a year.

It Has Its Patty Value

A justice of the peace in Pittsburgh has ruled that chewing gum is a drug, and that settles another vexed question. It can't qualify as food, drink, cosmetics or green groceries, and this judicial wisdom comes just in time to keep us from classifying it as a game of skill.—Tacoma Ledger.

YOUR OWN MONUMENT

Have you thought of it? Even though you are not eminent in any walk of life and the world will not erect a monument to your memory, you may do so yourself. You may plan a memorial for a friend, for the family. We will carry out your instructions.

New York Specialist

GIVES MARVELOUS RESULTS WITH IMPROVED METHODS

COMES TO KINGSTON

Every Wednesday and Will Examine All Cases Free at 163 Clinton Ave., near St. James St., from 9 a. m. to 12 and 1 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m.

Dr. Swinburne, Specialist

Is Opposing the Craze for Surgery.

Many cases have obtained relief by using treatment given by the New York Specialist, even after failure of every other method. Read these reports:

Ulcers of Stomach Cured Without Surgery.

Mr. Charles Pickett of 832 Terrace Place, Schenectady, N. Y., was sick for five years from stomach trouble, until he was unable to work. After a number of doctors failed to help him, he had X-ray pictures taken and a leading physician told him he had ulcers of the stomach and nothing would help but an operation. Seeing the notice of the New York Specialist coming to Kingston, he decided to see him before going under the knife. Dr. Swinburne examined him and gave him his opinion that his treatment would help him without the need of surgery. In one month he became much better and in three months was restored to health and able to work every day.

Marvelous Results in Chronic Cases.

Mrs. J. Van Dusen, Castleton, N. Y., was an invalid confined to her bed for over two years. Doctors had claimed she had Bright's disease, nervous disorders and heart trouble. There seemed no hope for her case and she despaired of ever being cured. Hearing of Dr. Swinburne, she decided to have him see her, with the result that the doctor assured her that by treating her stomach and improving her digestion and assimilation, she could expect to obtain good health again.

With one month's treatment, she was able to sit up and felt much improved, and in three months was able to go to the city to see the doctor and do shopping and after a little more than a year of treatment, she was enjoying good health and able to attend to her household and social duties.

Diabetes Case Obtains Wonderful Results.

Mrs. Davidson from a nearby town in New York State, had suffered from diabetes and her doctor offered her no hope for a cure. She became gradually in a worse condition from the development of weakness of the heart, and she could hardly get around at all. Hearing of Dr. Swinburne's success in treating these serious diseases by improving the action of the stomach and liver, she decided to consult him and began the treatment. In one month's treatment the patient was delighted to find great relief, and in six months the diabetes was entirely controlled and the urine became free from any trace of sugar.

Many other severe cases can expect good results with new methods of treatment. Call for free information at Branch Office.

If you are suffering from any chronic or obscure disease, you should call to see the doctor, for there will be no charge unless you want treatment.

Doctor's next visit to 163 Clinton Ave., Kingston, on Wednesday, July 23rd, from 9 a. m. to 12 m.; 1 p. m. to 5 p. m.; 6:30 to 8 p. m.

Transactions in country property continue to be very active in the office of I. Paradise of 19 Railroad avenue. Title has passed and possession been given to Walter H. Vallance and wife of 337 West 49th street, New York city, who purchased from Mrs. Pauline Mason her summer residence and property located on the Rifton road near the lakes. Mr. Vallance purchased this property for a home in Ulster county on account of his wife's health.

Leonard Alberts and wife of New York city have purchased the residence and store of Mrs. Annie Diercks, which is located on the Tillson boulevard. Mr. Alberts, who for a number of years was an engineer mechanic in the automobile industry, will erect on the premises a large garage where he will have a shop for the repairing of automobiles, etc. He is also an expert on radios which he will also connect with his business. Mrs. Diercks has taken up her home with her daughter, Mrs. Suttner, in Jamaica, L. I.

Mr. Paradise, who purchased from Ralph Spaulding and Norma Spaulding, his wife, their state road property in West Hurley, has resold the same to Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Bunt. This property is considered one of the best located properties along the state road with a fine set of buildings. Mr. Bunt, who for a number of years was a master mechanic in the automobile industry, will use the large shop upon the property for a service and gasoline station, also a way side stand. Improvements including electric lights will be installed in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Bunt formerly resided at 1193 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J.

Mr. Paradise has come in possession of a 45 acre farm located 3 miles south of the city of Fleischmanns. The farm is situated opposite the homes of Arthur Brisbane, Madame Galli Curli and others of note. It was the intention of Mr. Paradise when taking this farm to use it for the benefit of his health. The farm is situated on a very high elevation, has the very finest of water, a set of buildings and a large apple orchard. It was purchased from Rowland Persons and wife.

Contracts have been acknowledged for the purchasing of the 45 acre farm and boarding house of Anna Graham located in the town of Marletown, purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bates of Clarmont avenue, New York city, who purchased it completely equipped. The farm has an elegant location and views of the surroundings are unsurpassed, and it is considered one of the most ideal boarding houses in Ulster county. The house has 20 rooms, store and business, and all buildings were erected in 1913.

TREATMENT OF SOME SIMPLE FABRICS

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

It seems hardly necessary to state that the lady of the decoration was sketched in a Paris restaurant. Her gown, her attitude, her short skirt, and shorter hair all bespeak Paris, although it has come to pass that several of the most chic women there are letting their shingled hair grow out again.

The pleated crepe dress. If the pleating is in tiers or group effects continues to have many sponsors, and frocks which have swinging capes are as popular as ever. This model might easily be chosen for a frock which is to employ fringe instead of pleating, as more and more frocks are doing, thanks to the re-awakened interest in Spanish modes, an influence which is felt more in millinery than elsewhere. One might even make use of ostrich feathers instead of silk or crystal fringe for such a dress; another popular use of this being to apply three, five or seven rows of fringe from the hips or knees, the upper part of the

"Radio Movies" Within a Year

Prediction by John Hays Hammond, Jr., inventor, that radio possibilities bordering on miraculous will materialize soon.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 21.—"Economic broadcasting"—a new idea in radio, by which a super-market of nationwide, perhaps world-wide scope would be created.

"Radio movies"—perfection of which will make it possible for the owner of a receiving set to sit in his home in America and view as well as hear events which are taking place simultaneously in Europe.

These and other developments bordering on the miraculous were predicted as radio possibilities of the not distant future by John Hays Hammond, Jr., famous inventor, in an exclusive interview today with International News Service.

Hammond, who has just returned from Europe after an extensive investigation of radio developments abroad, predicts that "radio movies" flashed across the Atlantic, probably will be an actuality within a year.

"Economic broadcasting"—the creation of a mammoth trade mark of the air, through which materials, labor and commodities in general, can be bought and sold as though the world's buyers and sellers were assembled in one room is now being developed in the Hammond laboratory, under the direction of Leslie Buswell, the superintendent, Hammond said.

"Economic broadcasting" and "radio movies" in their practical application, both will materialize with the anticipated early perfection of "super-sonic modulation," Hammond's own contribution to radio and short wave transmission, the inventor said.

Establishment of the nation-wide air market will necessitate assignment by the government of a special band of short wave lengths to a broadcasting stations and especially for this purpose. These various wave lengths, in turn, would be assigned to the special industries. Scattered throughout the country, in factories and business offices, would be receiving sets permanently tuned in to the desired wave length. All matters of interest and all business to be transacted would be carried on this wave length. New developments will make it possible to do this without interfering with any broadcasting, Hammond explained.

Americans Won Men's Doubles

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, July 21.—America scored another triumph in Olympic tennis competition today when Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter defeated Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, of France, in the men's doubles titles. The score 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

The victory in the men's doubles will give the American tennis players a clean sweep in all the events. Miss Helen Wills, the California girl wonder, triumphed in the women's singles; Richards won the men's singles and the team of Miss Wills-Mrs. Wightman won the women's doubles.

In the other competition—the mixed doubles—two American teams will fight it out for the title.

Rome Also Knew Strikes

Officials of the American Federation of Labor, among whom are some students of the classics, have discovered that ancient Rome was no more immune to strikes than modern New York or Chicago. They have discovered that Livy and Ovid described a strike of musicians in Rome.

The strikers, who belonged to the guild of musicians (libellines) refused to work because the banquet which was traditionally accorded them every year at the expense of the state was omitted in 311 B. C.

The musicians all left Rome and went to Tibur to await overtures from the state. The situation created by the walkout was very embarrassing to the authorities, for the sacrifices could not be carried out without music. The men were finally lured back by strategy. They were served freely with wine and taken to Rome "dead to the world." The men won their strike, however, for the authorities decided that a privilege so long accorded had become a right and the banquet was restored.

Lightning Lore

More men than women are struck by lightning. The cause is not in any physical difference between the sexes; it is that men, by their nature and habits, are more frequently exposed to the danger. Incidentally, men are also more liable to lightning strikes.

May Ask Germany To Conference

Probabilities are that invitation will be extended to discuss railroad situation—Allied Conference to Resume Full Session Tuesday.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, July 21.—With virtual agreement reached on the important issues, sub-committees of the Allied conference on the Dawes plan today were putting their reports in final shape for presentation to the full session of the conference tomorrow.

The committee on reparations and distribution of payments in kind have completed their reports, but the committee dealing with the restoration of German fiscal and financial unity has been unable to agree on the disposition of German railroads and it was indicated this matter would be referred back to the full session.

Decision has been difficult because the railroad question involves security of the Franco-Belgian troops in the occupied area.

Premier MacDonald, Premier Herriot, Premier Theunis, Count Destefani and Ambassador Kellogg met today in Downing street for a final discussion before the plenary session. It was understood the question of inviting the Germans to the conference was discussed and that the probabilities are such an invitation will be issued unless opposition at home causes Premier Herriot to balk at the last minute.

The other important questions not yet settled are the military and economical evacuation of Germany, really the most important, and the French demand for enlargement of the transfer committee to include a Serbian and Japanese member in addition to the present six which includes two Americans and one Englishman. The French hold that this gives the committee "Anglo-Saxon domination."

Colonials Won Sunday's Game

From The Oneonta Giants, Score 4 to 3—Hummer and Davis Pitch Good Ball—Coyle Is Best Hitter.

The Colonials collected a total of 14 hits off Lefty Davis, pitching for the Oneonta Giants on Sunday at the Fair Grounds and Gene Hummer hurling for the Schrickmen allowed the Giants 8 safeties. The hits gathered by the local representatives were scattered under the eighth inning when Schwab, Coyle and Robins each hit in a row scoring two runs which won the struggle 4 to 3.

Coyle was the hitting star on Sunday, making three hits. Local fandom was given a thrill in the ninth when with the score 4 to 2, Eckstein hit for the circuit and Sinastack followed with a two base clout.

Both teams had an error chalked up. All told the game was very interesting and was not decided until the last out was made.

In the week end still the Colonials broke even, which still puts the Oneonta Giants in the lead in the series.

Blodgett Again Won for Oneonta

Colonials Collected but Three Hits and Lost 4 to 2 on Saturday—Morgan Was Derricked After Allowing Three Runs in Opening Inning.

Still unable to solve the delivery of Lefty Blodgett the Colonials were defeated by the Oneonta baseball club on Saturday afternoon by a 4-2 score. It was the third time this year that Blodgett had held the Colonials in check and the fifth time this season that Thomas's club had defeated the Schrickmen.

Blodgett allowed the Colonials three hits on Saturday, one of which was a home run in the ninth inning by Flynn with one man on the base and which was responsible for the two tallies made by the Colonials. Coyle and Culleton were credited with the other two safe blows. Up until the fifth inning when Coyle came through with his single Blodgett looked as though he was on his way to a no-hit, no-run game.

Morgan started on the mound for the Colonials but didn't stay there very long. Morgan couldn't locate the plate at all on Saturday. He pitched to just six hitters and during that time walked three men, made two wild pitches, allowed two hits and three runs, and had only retired one man. Morgan was relieved by Culleton after he had done all this damage. Culleton pitched a good game but the three runs that Morgan had allowed to score and Blodgett's effectiveness were too much for the Colonial ace to overcome.

The only run that Oneonta obtained while Culleton was in the box came in the fourth inning when Blodgett hit a home run over the left field fence. The southpaw's four base clout was rather a lucky one as it first hit the fence and then bounced over to the other side.

Two men were out in the ninth inning when Fitch misjudged Raskin's grounder allowing him to reach first base. Flynn then put the ball over the bat sign, giving the Colonials their two runs. Schwab was given a walk to first base but the game was over when Faye got under Coyle's fly for the third out.
